1000 Secluded Lane

Dear Parents,

Our annual Cheetah Chase fundraiser is underway and we are off to a great start. Cheetah Chase will be held on Friday, November 16. This year we are raising money for a Botanical Garden in the back of the school. Our plan is to supply the garden with plants native to Tennessee and utilize this area for hands on science and social studies, as well as an outdoor area for reading and class discussion.

We are also working toward developing a 21st century media center equipped with portable large screen TV's for group research and instruction, a center for listening to audio books, areas for group projects, and access to devices that will facilitate self-discovery and collaborative work.

Our third area of focus will be school wide technology. We are fortunate to have achieved a 1:1 ratio of devices per students in 1-5 grade. However, each year we need to replenish some existing equipment, purchase materials for our STEM activities and upgrade our Kindergarten IPADS. We are very fortunate to have parents and families who have stepped up to help us provide these resources for our students. So thank you once again for your generosity and support. We look forward to a successful Cheetah Chase and a fun day for all.

Best,
Dr. Garrett

Buzz from the Art Room

This month the character trait is perseverance, which can be a challenge in the art room. Sometimes students find it frustrating trying new techniques and media, especially when there is an expectation of perfection in the end product. For the last couple of years I have been emphasizing that practice makes PROGRESS not "perfection". Just because you don't know how to draw a particular thing YET, for instance an aardvark, doesn't mean you can't draw at all. It just means you have to try and practice using your artist's eyes to look at an aardvark-shape, size, color, texture. Telling and believing yourself you CAN do it is an essential ingredient to success. Then you have to practice, practice, practice until one day you realize you can't remember when you did not know how to draw an aardvark. Please help me at home by reinforcing positive self talk and honestly analyzing artwork pointing out what worked and what they might try differently next time.

- Kindergarten is working on drawing using basic shapes and colors. We are using markers, pencils, and oil pastels.
- 1st Grade is interpreting celestial events in water color.
- 2nd grade is working on color value and texture.
- 3rd grade is creating portraits of their biography subjects using pixels.
- 4th grade is beginning to depict a birch tree forest in oil pastels and watercolors.
- 5th grade is learning about optical illusions and how to create them using shape and shading.

Harry Potter Book Club

We will be meeting for the third time this week and so far it has been very successful. Students have read chapters 1-7, been sorted into houses via M&M sorcerer hats, folded owls, created individual wands, tested a growing potion, and celebrated Harry's 10th birthday. This week we leave King's Cross on the Hogwarts express and arrive at Hogwarts!!!

News from Nurse Gloria

Parents,

It's that time year again when we are seeing illnesses starting. When you're not sure if your child should be at school please refer to our illness policy.

Please don't send your child if they say they are sick and tell them to make it through lunch. This puts our other students at risk for illnesses.

Head lice... those dreaded words. We are not seeing a ton of lice at our school. However, please check your child's head nightly. Early detection is the best. If your child contracts lice please call me and I'll instruct you as to what WCS requires.
