Mrs. Seay’s fifth grade classes explained the relationships or interactions of events based on specific information in their text. After reviewing cause and effect within the reading series, Wonders, students used their independent reading books to capture and explain chain reactions using the SmartArt feature within Microsoft Word. Students created models to display the cause/effect chain reaction in an appropriate flow chart. They critically thought through the template choice, the relationships being displayed, and the overall text examples being provided. Students shared their reactions with classmates and evaluated the information presented.
